

Say Hello to Mr. Valentine

By Shirley Harriman

Lancaster – Living at Lifesavers Wild Horse Rescue is this beautiful blonde boy who was scheduled to go Canada to a kill center. He was rescued and brought home to be someone's loving companion.

He is in quarantine for the time being. Once the veterinarian clears him he will be released to the herd.

The Rescue does not sell horses. The horses are gentled, trained and adopted for a fee that goes directly back into the rescue of the next would-be victim of the vicious heartless horse meat trade.

He was rescued February 14, 2016, thus his name. I asked him if he had any idea how many millions of dollars are spent by humans to have blonde hair that he has naturally. He was eager to have human attention. Someone will be very fortunate when they adopt Valentine.
